MANY COTTAGES BURN AT SALISBURY BEACH

Fire Started Shortly After Midnight
and a High Wind Was Blowing

Help from Newburyport and Amesbury but Fire Burned More than Three Hours

Fire broke out in the thickly settled portion of Salisbury Beach shortly after midnight, and driven before the strong northeast wind bade fair to sweep the entire beach.

The fire spread very rapidly toward Black Rocks, and the summer cottages nothing but tinder boxes at the best, long dried by the dry weather, burned quickly and fiercely before the wind.

The fire started in the New Era cottage owned by Hon. E. P. Shaw. This cottage was located in the rear of the Seaside House.

Capt. Charles of the Salisbury beach life saving station rushed his crew to the square to give assistance.

Later the captain telephoned to Newburyport for assistance. The electric on the southerly side of the railroad tracks, and much property was saved in that immediate locality.

The flames rapidly spread toward Black Rocks and all efforts were powerless to check the fire. As a last resort it was decided to tear down buildings, hoping by this means to save some of the cottages at the extreme southerly end of the beach but to no avail and the flames swept on.

At 4:15 the fire was under control owing to a fortunate shift of the wind to the northwest, and the tearing down of several cottages in the path of the flames.

The extent of the loss has not been authoritatively stated, but is commonly estimated to be much in excess of $100,000.

A partial list of the cottages destroyed follows:

New Era cottage, E. P. Shaw.
Quartette cottage, Fred Libby, Haverhill.

BOUND AND ROBBED

Old Man Given Rough Treatment at His Home in New Hampshire

Two men entered the home of Michael Egan at Claremont on Sunday morning, gagged and bound the old man tied him to a stove, took his money from his pocket and ransacked his house. Mr. Egan, who is seventy-nine years old, lives alone in what is known as the Mosquito district, just over the New port line. Just before moonlight the men came to his house and one of them engaged him in conversation. While they were talking the other slipped behind him and grabbed him.

After they left Mr. Egan managed to wriggle loose and started for the nearest neighbor, two miles away. On the road he met Harry Brooks of Claremont. Mr. Brooks notified the police and they in turn notified the police of the surrounding towns.

Mr. Egan says that his assailants were both tall men, thirty or thirty-five years old. The one who talked to him was smooth shaven, and had long gold filling in his teeth.

The first railroad case to come before the superior court began today when Constantaneous Leros of Ipswich, Mass., by his next friend, Peter Miller, brings suit for $10,000 for injuries sustained by Leros on November 26, 1907, at the Portsmouth depot. Leros, who was a passenger on the railroad holding a ticket, from Dover to Ipswich claims the company was negligent in not having its platform clear of ice which caused him to slip and fall in such a manner that the Dover train crushed one of his legs and it was later amputated at the hospital. After the jurors were enrolled a view of the scene of the accident was taken by the court, jury and attorneys. In gallant matters he has long

John Quinn of this city, retraced his plea of breaking and entering a freight car and the larceny of goods, but pleaded guilty to larceny of $15, in each case, being indicted in three different cases. Lawyer John W. Kelley appeared for him and said that he was convinced that Quinn had nothing to do with the breaking and entering, but when the stolen goods were brought to his house he took them knowing that they were stolen, and used some of them. Quinn was sentenced to ten months in jail, with cost, on one case, and the other cases continued for sentence.

BRYAN'S BANK PLAN BREEDS WILDCATS

No Good Results Can Come From His Guaranty Scheme

Chicago, Oct. 27.—The following of fearing the morality of everyone on the Bryan Bank Guaranty Policy in the bank from the President to entitled near banking is from the wife of the man whose name is written of Robert B. Armstrong president of the Guaranty Company formerly assistant secretary of the treasury, and a member of the U. S. treasury.

Guarantee of bank deposits as confidence-insured with the banks is temptation in the democratic plan. It is an attempt at the impossible. Its practical application annihilates the incentive to use honest morals, character, sagacity, judgment and new men in banking.

The rascal and the thief behind a bank counter have everything to gain and nothing to lose. The lowest kind of character who has briddled through a lifetime, carefully, a banking house with a reputation for all of these elements which give a depositor a sense of security, even though he is backed up by a large capital and constantly augmented surplus, is forced by the state to the same level as the thieving, scheming financial adventurer.

But have the government back of them. One can use this as much as the other. It is a business partnership in which a man compelled bankers of character and responsibility to pay the bills for irresponsible, incompetent and immoral apprentices in the banking business.

No sane insurance underwriter, if he were backed by unlimited capital, would ever assume such a hazard. There is roughly speaking, three billions of cash in the banks of the country. On that foundation is placed ten millions more of credit.

Guaranteeing bank deposits, then, means that someone, be it the government or some one else, is willing to guarantee every depositor that not only his share of the three billions of cash will be inviolate, but that the corresponding portion of the ten billions of credit will be as solid as the rock of Gibraltar and convertible into cash on the slightest notice.

Probably fifty times since I have been in the insurance business have I been asked to do the same thing that the Democratic party now desire of the government to undertake. On each occasion the project was backed by abundant capital, and the proposition was invariably rejected. Some of the reasons for declining the proposition follow:

First, because of the impossibility of any prosecuting official, and he will tell you that the absence of an active public opinion makes it almost, if not quite, impossible to punish banking crimes. He will tell you that it requires the active vengeance of the depositors themselves to get the necessary evidence and sympathy of the community to result in punishment sufficient to fit the crime.

In just the same ratio the banker, when he is held individually responsible, fears and respects this force. Take it away and you take off the bit. Transfer it to the government and you lower the honest, conservative banker to the level of any financial adventurer who can break into the banking business by the front door.

The last named cannot pay his share of the guaranty, and inevitably the decent, responsible banker has to pay for the increased losses and sufferings which must result when the irresponsible banker is protected by a government guaranty—guaranty which gives him a safe haven from the wrath of his depositors.

Impossible and insensible from an insurance standpoint as is the guaranty of deposits of a bank as an institution, the insurance of the depositor of an individual is not only feasible but proper. There is this difference, however:

In the plan of government guarantee the whole responsibility of the institution is assumed, and every man, woman and child connected with the bank knows that the responsibility is no longer theirs but the government's. In the other, no one but the insurance company and the depositor knows that the latter has taken an extra precaution. It is simply a property insurance.

If the depositor had used the money to build a house he surely would have insured it against fire. Instead of buying a house he had bought jewels, he would have insured against burglary, and if he chooses to leave the property in the bank in the form of money he should be allowed to insure it if he cares to do so. Under these circumstances the rate would vary according to the resources of the bank, the character of the management, and the reputation of the men who are its officers, directors, and stockholders.

Such a provision is scientifically proper from an insurance standpoint and is as different as day from night from the wholesale, reckless guarantee of character, means, brains, and courage of rest and near bankers as contemplated by the democratic party in its plea for a blanket government guaranty of bank deposits.

This plan is based upon an untried experiment in a less exact stage in Oklahoma, and is referred to as the Oklahoma plan. Thus far it has resulted in the multiplication of bank failures in necessary capital, and frequently entirely devoid of character.

The man with a past is heading into a new bank that he keeps in the knowledge that he is in partnership with a state that his deceptions can't pull him limb from limb even if he does tell them, for his partner will pay. They will argue about the reservation after that. But it will be his partner that will have to prosecute if anyone does.

Great and elemental changes in a railroad system, a great factory, or a great store are not made before the test experiment is half finished. Patient research for years. If necessary, in a laboratory produces any revolutionary change in the manufacture of delicate and costly materials.

Trade association companies have experimented with electricity for years before they millions in their walls and copper wire. Merchants have studied months upon months with many thorough tests, before spending money in advertising of new sales methods.

Banking and transportation make money and distribute it advantageously. To say otherwise banking is an undertaking of gigantic import. Every banker, economist, and insurance underwriter has been wronged a partner for financial his has been discovered by those responsible for the Oklahoma law, let them first prove their alleged discovery will stand they claim for it. For the experiment to be conducted to a conclusion in Oklahoma.

Friends of finance and lovers of our city say to the advocates of the Bryan bank plan, "Physician, cure thyself." If you can convince us that the plan is complete and lasting then we will agree to let you immediately see other patients. Until you convince us, we prefer to stay as we are and suspend judgment.

LAUER WINS IN CANADA.

Premier Returned to Power For Another Five Years.

IS NOT TO RUN AGAIN.

His Desire Is to Make Further Efforts Toward Developing the Northwest--No Great Issue Discussed During the Campaign--Many Serious Charges of Grafting and Personal Misconduct.

Ottawa, Oct. 27.—Elections for the federal house of commons were held throughout Canada. Of the 221 constituencies in the Dominion, only two, Ronville, Que., and South York, Ont., returned members by acclamation. In all the others with the exception of five, which holds their elections later, there were contests.

The returns show that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the present Liberal premier, who in the last house had a majority of sixty-six, will be returned to power for another five years, with a safe, although slightly reduced, majority.

French-Canadian Quebec remained loyal to the premier, electing a membership almost solidly Liberal.

Ontario, where the Conservatives expected to make their heaviest gains and where the campaign against alleged government extravagance and favoritism waged the hottest did not come up to the opposition's expectations. The returns indicate an almost evenly divided membership, compared with thirty-nine Liberals and forty-seven Conservatives in the last house.

The opposition gained slightly in Manitoba, but the Liberals carried the remainder of the west with few exceptions.

Nova Scotia, which at the last general elections in 1904 returned a solid Liberal phalanx, gives the Conservative party several seats. R. L. Burden, leader of the Conservatives, was elected by a substantial majority in Halifax, which rejected him four years ago.

All the ministers have been re-elected with the exception of William Templeman of Victoria, B. C., who lost by five votes.

The campaign is the last in which Premier Laurier will participate. He told the directors that he desired to stay to completion the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad, the trans-continental system now under construction, and applied for another term of office in which to further develop the northwest. He said the appeal was the last he would make to the electors of Canada.

The Conservative party, while not opposing the construction of a second trans-continental line, has severely criticized the heavy bond guarantee which the government assumed and condemned the indefinite plans for the eastern terminal of the system, in which the Conservatives claim there is no provision to prevent the traffic being diverted from Halifax or St. John to Portland, Me., the Atlantic port of the existing Grand Trunk road.

The Conservatives were charged by their opponents with circulating thousands of copies of Boston Journal publication containing an attack on the Grand Trunk Pacific project. It was further charged that rival railroad interests in the United States and Canada were behind the attack. Outside of the railroad question there has been little in the campaign of interest to Americans.

Throughout the six weeks' campaign there has been no great question discussed. The tariff is no longer an issue, and the business depression felt in other countries has not been acute in Canada. The campaign has been one largely of personalities, and many serious charges of grafting and personal misconduct have been made against members of the government and several Conservative members of parliament. No accusations involving their personal honor have been made against Laurier or Borden, however.

On the government side, William Pugsley, minister of public works, and Sir Frederick Borden, minister of militia and defense, were subjected to violent attacks, and a strong fight was made against them. As a result several persons were arrested on charges of criminal libel.

George E. Foster, who was finance minister in the Conservative government and one of the present opposition leaders, and several other Conservative members of parliament were also under fire, on the ground that they speculated with funds of the independent Order of Foresters.

JAPANESE PEOPLE GRATIFIED.

"Heaven and the Weather" Added to Entertainment of Americans.

Washington, Oct. 27.—"I suppose Heaven helped us to join our hands firmly," said Ambassador Takahira, with emotion, as he discussed the visit of the American battleship fleet to Japan, which has just come to town.

Ambassador Takahira had returned from the White House, where he was the guest of President Roosevelt at luncheon, and he had delivered a message of thanks to the president from the Japanese emperor, replying to that which the president sent as the fleet departed.

The Baron personally thanked the president for having sent the fleet to Japanese waters and said its visit furthered to a great degree the feeling of friendship held by the Japanese for the people of the United States.

Speaking of the fleet's visit, Takahira said: "The people of Japan are greatly gratified with the visit of the American fleet, for which they had been looking forward with the greatest pleasure in order to prove the sincerity of feeling entertained toward America and Americans. In respect to the details of the visit, the American people are already fully informed. I am now satisfied to hear from Japan directly that Heaven and the weather helped us to do all that we wanted."

MISS PHILBRICK AND SMITH FREED.

Not Responsible For the Death of Abbie Stark.

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 27.—At the conclusion of the testimony of Medical Examiner Congdon, Judge Runnells ordered the discharge of Miss Ione L. Philbrick and George O. Smith, who had been charged with murder in the second degree in connection with the death last Friday of Miss Abbie E. Stark.

Miss Stark died suddenly under circumstances that led to the belief that she had been poisoned, and the arrest of Miss Philbrick and Smith followed the allegation that they had given her drug for the purpose of performing an unnatural function.

Only a few witnesses were heard before Runnells ordered the discharge of the prisoners. Congdon testified that his belief, after having performed an autopsy, was that Miss Stark's death was due to having taken a poisonous drug.

Judge Runnells ruled that an alleged confession made by Miss Philbrick to the medical referee was inadmissible as evidence, and then ordered the defendants discharged.

HUNDRED COTTAGES BURNED.

Salisbury Beach, Mass., Oct. 27.—A fire which started in the New Era house this morning swept along the beach, destroying over one hundred houses at the rear of the railroad tracks. The wind was blowing fresh from the northeast and carried the flames quickly and irresistibly from one building to another. Nearly all the structures were closely built frame houses, occupied only in summer. The burned area is south of the section where the large hotels and dance halls are located and, as the wind was blowing from a northerly direction, none of those structures were at any time in danger. The New Era house had been closed for the season. The cause of the fire has not been learned. Conservative estimates place the probable loss at upwards of $75,000.

BONES NOT IDENTIFIED.

Exeter, N. H., Oct. 27.—Medical Examiner Lane has taken possession of the human bones unearthed at Newfields by a dog owned by Albert McBride. While it is believed by many that the bones are those of John G. Wiggin of Stratham, who disappeared several years ago, there is also a theory that they may be those of an old man who lived in a shanty in Newfields about four years ago. This old man, whose name was unknown, lived alone in the woods and after a time disappeared.

FINES IN STRIKES.

Boston, Oct. 27.—Members of labor unions can be restrained by injunction from imposing fines on other members for the sole purpose of compelling workmen to obey orders to go on strike. Such is the gist of a decision handed down by the supreme court of this state. Two members of the bill court, Chief Justice Knowlton and Justice Sheldon, and a third member, Justice Longfellow, states that he, too, would dissent to the decision were it not for a former decision which creates a similar case.

A WELCOME RAINSTORM.

Boston, Oct. 27.—Crippling rains last night extinguished forest fires in many parts of New England and checked others for the time being. The rainfall was general and the parched forests were thoroughly drenched. The weather bureau reported a total precipitation of 1.32 inches during the storm. It was the first rain of any consequence since Aug. 25 and was felt generally throughout New England.

FISHING RECORDS BROKEN.

Boston, Oct. 27.—All fish records for the port of Boston were broken yesterday when fifty-five fishermen brought in a grand total of 1,719,400 pounds of fish.

Republicans, and reviewed a parade, which, in spite of somewhat adverse weather conditions, was impressive in its size and inspiring in its enthusiasm.

The crowd ceased some time before the parade was scheduled to start, and the function was carried out with all the elaborateness planned and with that enthusiasm for which the Republican cohorts of Kings county are famed. Similarly successful and enthusiastic were the meetings of the night, particularly those in the Clemont avenue park and the Academy of Music, where Taft made his principal addresses.

The feature of the trip into Connecticut was the New Haven meeting, here, with football enthusiasm, the candidate was pleased the support of large portion of the student body of Yale, through the presentation of a handily bound memorial containing many pages of signatures.

The meeting at the Clemont avenue park proved to be the biggest of the night, the building being filled to the doors, while many were turned away. This meeting contained so late that the reception at the Union League club was abandoned and Taft went from the club to his brother's home in Manhattan, arriving there soon after midnight. At the Clemont avenue this meeting Senator Oliver and Senator Bryan spoke before Taft was interviewed.

Mr. Taft's remarks were along the lines of his recent speeches, nothing especially new being introduced. The demonstrations of approval by his audience were frequent and pronounced.

INDEPENDENCE RALLYES.

Boston, Oct. 27.—The Independence League party held three stirring mass meetings in Boston last night, at each of which the principal speaker was the presidential nominee of the party, Theodore L. Higginson. White meetings were held in the Tufts Street opera house and Fenwick hall, the greatest assembly gathered in Tremont temple. The candidates of the party for governor and lieutenant governor, William N. Dugay and Robert J. McFarlane, spoke on state issues. Former Congressman Howard of Alabama reviewed the history of the leading parties of the day, the day's trials and the results. He gave first aid to Morse that he is "busted" the bank.

Lee was questioned at length concerning the happenings behind the closed doors of the Park dining room, the evening hours of Oct. 26, the date of the day's trials. After the rounds of the day's trials had been covered it was discovered Lee had left. Morse had overdrawn his account $211.00. In order to make up this deficiency he had turned his bank for a quantity of securities, for the most part stocks and bonds not listed on the Stock Exchange and of doubtful value as collateral for the sum of $211.00. This loan the directors required on the following day, the call being put up by Morse being found in the factory.

Lee again turned to the Park dining room to stay the dominating turbulence created over the National Bank of North America by Morse, as given by W. A. Nesh, president of the Crop Exchange merchant and a member of the closing house council.

The public is represented by Mr. Peacock, the Service reporter, and in my view while passing through Boston, the people said that the service reporter was to persuade the Russian emperor to intercede against the annexation of Bessarabia and Herzegovina, and he added, he anticipates good news for Servia.

Only a few days ago the crown prince stated that though he was to find himself and his wife in difficulties when he met the sultan of Turkey, he would be received with open arms.

It is very difficult to get negotiations between Austria and Turkey to proceed.

Although there has been no change in the actual situation, the tendency of diplomatic activity is towards peace.

Servia remains the danger point, and the visit of the Serbian crown prince to St. Peterburg increases a certain amount of apprehension.

LAURIER TRIUMPHED

The Canadian election has resulted in a triumph for Sir Wilfred Laurier and the Liberal party. With a satisfactory majority (about forty) in the House of Commons, Sir Wilfred is assured of being again called to form the ministry.

The outcome of the voting was much in doubt. The Liberal government, of which Sir Wilfred Laurier is at the head, had the advantage of commanding the federal patronage, but after being twelve years in office, it was obliged to be largely on the defensive in repelling the most bitter attacks ever made in a Canadian campaign. The Liberals were handicapped by heavy losses in provincial elections during the past two years.

On the other hand the prosperity of the country, the development of the northwest and the popularity of Premier Laurier were strong cards in the hands of the Liberals, and their campaigners have used them at all their meetings.

The politicians of both parties agreed that the western and eastern provinces hold the balance of power. The great provinces of Ontario and Quebec balance each other, Ontario at the present time being overwhelmingly conservative and the old French province a staunch supporter of its distinguished son, the premier of Canada.

The two parties struggled for supremacy in the eastern maritime provinces of Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, and in the western provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Sir Wilfred Laurier, if his life and strength are spared, will round out his career with the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad and the opening of the rest of the Dominion's vacant lands to settlement.

The measures contemplated are of importance to the United States for they mean that our nearest neighbor is actually to become our most important competitor in the markets of the world.

The Laurier government has been in power twelve years. The life limit of a Canadian parliament is five years; but parliament may be dissolved and an appeal to the people taken at any time. If the government sustains an important setback it is customary to appeal to the people at once. If things run smooth, the appeal is usually taken in four years. The Laurier government has existed through twelve years and three parliaments. In that short time the almost incredible task has been accomplished of uniting the Canadian people. Where were formerly mutual provincialists, Frenchmen, Ontarians, Westerners and several smaller discordant factions, there is now one united people and the Canadians have dropped their petty differences.

Sir Wilfred has been given another term of power. His age and his health are such that his followers accept, though reluctantly, his statement that he will never again try for high position.

BIRD'S-EYE VIEW

Dr. Henry A. Weymouth died at Andover Tuesday, aged eighty-eight years. He was a graduate of Dartmouth.

There is a big building boom on at Ogunquit where it is said fourteen cottages will be built during the winter.

The Independence party candidates whose names will be on the official ballot election day, are as follows: For presidential electors: Roscoe T. Hart, Newington; Luther B. Sampson, Rochester; William M. Kendall, Manchester; Vilas E. Bryant, Concord.

For governor, Walter H. Lewis, Manchester; for congressmen, first district, Jared Abino Green, Montabompton; second district, Alfred R. Browne, Plymouth.

Adjutant General Harry B. Cilley has drawn upon the war department for 16,000 olive drab overcoats, 1600 khaki uniforms and field service equipment.

Although Independence Day has long since passed, the Journal of the American Medical Association, which makes a specialty of collecting statistics of injuries and deaths traceable to the holiday, has just completed the work, and announced the result for the last Fourth of July. It finds that throughout the United States there were seventy-six tetanus cases this year, an increase of three over 1907, but thirteen less than in 1905. These cases were distributed among twenty states, and of the cities Chicago had the greatest number, twelve, with New York's nine in second place. Most of the tetanus cases were due to injuries by blank cartridges. In addition to tetanus fatalities, there were 308 deaths caused by fireworks, pyrotechnic means employed in celebrating the National birthday. Of the persons who died in this way thirty were killed outright by firearms, twenty-three by light firecrackers, fifty-two were burned to death in fires from fireworks, nineteen met death by explosions of powder, seven by toy cannon and seven by blood poisoning, skyrockets, chemicals, or in some way connected with the noisy observance. It is aptly pointed out in this connection that the figures tell their own story of suffering, pain and death and suggest greater restrictions in the use of dangerous fireworks and explosives.

OUR EXCHANGES

Work of Our County Officials

The present is an opportune time to call attention to the administration of the affairs of Rockingham county during the Republican administration of recent years. When the county decided to replace its outgrown records building, court houses and jails with buildings of a modern type, a large debt was incurred, which needed expenditures at the county farm increased. The new buildings were of a character in which the entire country took pride and they will serve their purpose for many years to come. But the county debt had reached the large total of $123,911.25, since which time the commissioners have made a systematic effort for its reduction, year by year until more than half has been men their loss is not surprising.

One of the largest fleets of vessels for a long time is now en route to this port laden with nearly 39,000 tons of coal. It consists of ten four-masted schooners, the Clara A.
Donnell, Edward E. Birley, General
S. Greeley, J. R. Teel, Marie
Palmer, Maude Palmer, Mary E. H.
G. Dow, Medford, Stella B. Kaplan and Thomas S. Denison, and the barge Herndon and Lazon. The barge Dessoong with 1700 tons, foundered on the way, as before reported,

while there are at present in port the schooners Dorothy Palmer with 1600 tons, and Independent with 1800 tons, and the barges C. R. R.
No. 5 with 1300 tons and Eddie with 1200. Portsmouth's coal trade is certainly booming.

Two cars on the Atlantic Shore line on Monday morning came with about ten feet of having what would have been one of the most disastrous collisions in the history of the road. The first of the two,
both of which were conveying workmen to the navy yard, was unable to ascend the hill near Fort McClary and started so quickly backward that that the second motorman barely reversed his car in time. Many of the passengers jumped, but when the cars came to a standstill at the foot of the hill, they might almost have jumped from one to the other,
had they been so inclined.

Passenger car No. 2 of the Atlantic Shore Line broke through the floor of the car barn Sunday, going nearly to the marsh on which the barn is built. The car was today extricated from its unusual position.

Three masons are engaged in padding the tower at Whalesback light. They have just completed a new boat slip of larger dimensions than the former one, at Boon Island.

The storm caused a postponement of the dancing school at Frisbee's Hall Monday evening.

The schooner Albert Giger, whose skipper, Capt. William Mallman, has fished out of this port for upwards of a score of winters, has been sold to parties in Pensacola, Fla., and is now on her way to that port.

Mrs. Daniel Frisbee and her son, Harold M. Frisbee, have returned from a trip to Boston.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Joseph
Miller left today for New York.

William Dean Howells has returned to Boston, where his family is sojourning for a short time before occupying their winter residence in New York.

The power cruising launch Saftarra, whose unfortunate owner, William Pinkham of the Intervue, met his death in Salem harbor in August, has been brought here and handed out for the winter.

If you want the news you must Capt. Farrow of the schooner Inon Nantucket Shoals the five-master Stagelton Palmer, whose skipper, Capt. Potter, had seen the News to this port, going into Delaware Breakwater with her sails blown away. The sails were much injured by the Palmer's long "lay"

in Spence Creek during the summer

Deaths of William A. Hill and Football Season Will Close on Nov.

7 With Andover Game

Exeter, Oct. 27.—The first regular meeting of the Men's Parish Club was held last night in the church vestry at eight o'clock.
The meeting was well attended and an excellent short program was carried out. Refreshments were served during the evening.

R. C. Stevenson, who is becoming well known as a football official, having served nearly the entire season in that capacity here, and also having acted at Portland in the Colby-New-Hampshire State game, made an especially favorable impression by his work at Harvard last Saturday in the Fraser-Harvard Second game.

Work on William V. Merrill's hot house, which has been in progress
some time, will probably be completed this week. The building will be one of the fleet of hot-houses in Exeter.

A well attended meeting of the Renaissance Club was held with the Mission Jewell on Court street last night.
Arthur Bertell read an excellent paper on "Beginnings of German Romanticism."

Phillips-Exeter Academy meets the Dartmouth freshman tomorrow, and expects but little difficulty in winning Saturday's game with Colby, among the strongest of Maine college teams.
The game will prove a severe test of the playing ability of the home eleven. This game will be the last on home grounds for the next and final game will be played with Andover Academy at Andover. The result of the game as figured on paper is easy. It would appear that Andover can win it in a walk, as they have dropped but one game this year and that to the crack Yale freshman team which is about equal to the varsity. On the other hand Exeter has lost six games and her chances look rather poor. But many well versed in football, who have watched the work of the team closely, declared that the dark horse will spring a big surprise on the Massachusetts boys on Nov. 7. Certainly it is that any football squad of mediocre ability with the coaching which Glaze is giving will not be a bonds of $200 for the superior court.

Michael McDermott, who attempted to hang himself in his cell on Monday night faced the court on a charge of drunkenness. He had an old case hanging over him which could entrap and which will give McDermott six months of wood-chopping at the farm, and no time to think about any efforts of hanging himself.

his credit, will be obliged to serve the

The hunting party consisting of Albert Hayes, manager of Wetherell's West End drug store; W. S. Pitt, Neves of Haverhill, and G. C. Colburn, has returned from a trip to Lake Ossipee.
A good sized deer as a proof of their hunting ability and several foxes, including a number of partridges. Altogether the expedition was one of the most successful that has visited the lake region from Exeter for some time.

Mr. F. W. Hartford, manager of Portsmouth's well-known theatre, Musical Hall, which is attracting especial notice because of the pleasing bill for this week, consisting of "The Gingerbread Man" and "The Man of the Hour," was in town on Monday.

The Academy students are agitating the question of a hockey rink this winter.

Miss Emma Collins of South street is critically ill at her home.

Miss Margaret Elliott, eighty-eight years old, passed away at her home on Maple street, yesterday afternoon. She is survived by a nephew, John Elliott, a mechanic, Margaret Elliott, of Exeter, and Elizabeth Brown of Newburyport, Mass.
She was a well known lady, liked by everyone and will be sadly missed.

Another death which saddened the community was that of William A.
Hill, who died from the effects of a stroke by which he was stricken last week. He leaves no relatives but there is a host of friends to mourn him. He was for a long time employed in Gale
Brothers shoe factory.

The tenth anniversary of the New England Order of Protection will be observed this evening at the Lodge rooms. An interesting event to the members will be the result of elaborate preparations. The high officers including Supreme Warden Fred T. Peabody of Boston, Grand Warden Charles A.
Murdock of Manchester, Grand Secretary Joseph Daniels of Manchester. It is expected the judges of Newmarket and Portsmouth will be present as invitees to these organizations have been extended.

PRESIDENT GO TODAY

Washington, Oct. 27.—Today is the 80th anniversary of the birth of President Roosevelt. He will not take a day off, but will be hard at work in his office as on any other day. No family celebration has been planned so far as is known, but something in the nature of a surprise may be sprung on the President by Mrs. Roosevelt, probably in the form of a dinner party this evening.

Not the Heart

It is indigestion. Pains in your side around the region of your heart are not always heart trouble.
That is usually Indigestion. Kodol stops Indigestion—

It is the gas arising from undigested food that is distending the stomach, forcing it upward. It presses against the heart valve and causes the pain, shortness of breath and smothery feeling.

What you need is to get the food in your stomach completely digested and at the earliest opportunity. Kodol will do this. Undigested food forms into hard masses, which often cause intense pain. Every Dyspepsia knows what that suffering is. Kodol relieves it as nothing else will.

In indigestion the stomach membrane is inflamed. It is sensitive. Sometimes it is ulcerated. Hard, undigested food, moving against that tender lining, naturally causes pain.

Just about nine times out of ten people who complain about having heart disease are mistaken. They have Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Their stomach is overworked. It is run down and tired out and it needs

TIME IS THE TEST

The Testimony of Portsmouth People Stands the Test

The test of time is what tells the truth. The public even says so when misrepresentations are made, and truth alone will stand the test.

Portsmouth people appreciate much, and many models can be citizens, said by citizens themselves. KIDNEY BEANS, they say, are good, and a citizen that the consumer has nothing to do with the product is a good one. The article was just as reported. Of course there is no proof, and the evidence is not strong, but the evidence is strong.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—President Roosevelt will include in his recommendations to Congress an increase in subsidies to the railroads and local freight carriers, as well as tax relief. It has been estimated that with five carloads, the railroads in addition to the two cars now required at the last session, will require twenty more cars to move the volume of traffic to date. This is on the basis of the present capacity of the railroads, which may be about enough to meet the demand, and still have enough to spare to meet the increased traffic that will result from the return of the English naval forces to the Far East, and the increased shipping tonnage that will be required to transport the men and supplies of the British Expeditionary Force.

The President's action is due to the fact that he is convinced that a subsidy for ocean liners will give the navy no need for larger vessels for use in time of war than that obtained in peacetime. There are many officers in the navy who believe that the ships on whom he recently embarked, the Chicago, Baltimore and Raleigh, will not behave well in heavy weather. They think a much better plan is to pay subsidies to vessels of the type of the Minnetonka and Louisiana. President Roosevelt has not yet altered this view and may do it in his annual message. In case he does so he will have a hard fight against the foes of subsidies.

Remember the hundred thousand sailors on ocean.

Boston & Maine R.R. Wheels Will Go Round if Taft Is Elected

SO SAY MANUFACTURERS.

The National Association of Manufacturers, through its organ, American Industries, has just completed a canvass of its 3,000 members throughout the United States to ascertain the country's commercial status twelve months after the panic. The canvass was not made to serve any political purpose, and the forthcoming election was not mentioned, but the members of the association have taken advantage of one of the questions to declare that prosperity depends upon the election of Taft.

The canvass was made by means of letters sent out two weeks ago. Four questions were asked of the members relating to the exact condition of trade at present, the percentage of increase in business in the last ten months, the possibilities for future improvement and any suggestions which might serve to better future conditions. Everybody answered the last question by suggesting that Taft be elected.

Agricultural implements show the largest percentage of increase and vehicles the lowest. The textiles show a small percentage of increase with a rather unfavorable outlook, while leather and its manufactures and the timber industry are fairly satisfied and optimistic. Very little attention is paid to the tariff as a disturbing element, but a number of manufacturers, especially those interested in railway supplies and allied trades, complain against pending or threatened railway legislation.

The steel trade and the movement of pig iron, which form the most accurate barometer of trade conditions, make a distinctly encouraging report, as 73 per cent of the iron and steel plants in the association report conditions good, 78 per cent have had an increase during the last ten months, and 87 per cent have reason to believe that prospects for the immediate future are reassuring. Machinery, including all classes throughout the country, shows present conditions 68 per cent good and 76 per cent of the machinery manufacturers have had an increase since Jan. 1 last. Only one manufacturer of agricultural implements is pessimistic regarding the future.

The Democratic revolt against Mr. Bryan was remarkable not only for its moral strength and dignity, but for the high average of intelligence and patriotism among its members. These are vital forces which must be utterly stilled before Mr. Bryan can hope for the return of those who repudiated his standard. If he imagines that they can be overcome by sophistry, by the sneer smile of condescension and welcome or by the wild political hypnosis with which he mesmerizes the unthinking he is making the monumental blunder of his career.

Bryan and the Farmers. There is nothing more prosaic in Mr. Bryan's financial program than as a political agitation than his attempt to penetrate the American farmers that the Bryanized Democracy is their special friend and champion. He would have them believe that they are poor and oppressed, which they know to be ridiculous. He would have them believe that the Republican party has neglected their interests, which they know to be a flat contradiction of history. He would have them believe that the Democratic party is the only one having their welfare at heart, which they know to be a false pretense, in itself alike to their intelligence and their patriotism.

"Why?" exclaimed Mr. Bryan in a recent speech, "it was a country after our government was organized that we succeeded in getting a department of agriculture established." But he was not frank enough to explain that the act creating the department of agriculture as a separate executive department was enacted by a Republican congress and signed by a Republican president. These facts are mere details too trivial for Mr. Bryan's agitation. His specialty is generalities and theories, the gaudier the better, and he has no time to deal with particulars or actual conditions.

To P.W. American agriculture contributed absolutely nothing to the trade of the world except raw cotton produced by slave labor, which had the constant approval and protection of the Democratic party. The free farmer could not compete with slave labor, and his products were sold at prices negotiated by owners of non-slaveholding tillers of the soil. The free farmer, wherever he lived, had to be content if his crops realized credit to provide the compensation of life for himself and his family from year to year. The mere suggestion that he might some day have a surplus of products beyond his needs and that he could not compete with the citizen world have seemed preposterous to him.

The only analogy that ever operated in favor of the slave power which controlled the early part of our history was established by the civil war. Then began the development of the agricultural empire of America, which, under the constructive goals of Republican statesmanship, has made the farmer the controlling factor in our political life. The unfolding of

Bryan's Intolerance.

About the only plausible excuse for the curious belief of Mr. Bryan's managers that he will receive the support this year of the honest money Democrats, who revolted against his candidacy in 1896, is the glaring assumption that they have either forgotten or condoned the scurvy snubs with which he bowed them out of the party. The contempt with which he left from his arduous work in the Philippines to the lighter labors and the more congenial scenes of his native land.

Missionary Bishop trout of the Episcopal church in the Philippines, offered the bishops of Washington, with its social advantages and agreeable surroundings and its opportunities for intercourse with many of the ablest men of this and other countries, preferred his life of self-sacrifice in the far-off oriental islands and declined to leave his work among the Filipinos for a mansion in the capital of the United States.

In the motives that actuated Mr. Taft and that fed Bishop trout to refuse to desert the Filipinos there is no essential difference.

"It has always been my dream to be in the supreme court," said Mr. Taft in reply to President Roosevelt when Mr. Taft had come to Washington to state the case of the Philippines to a committee of congress, "but if you should give me a justiceship now, and if at the same time congress should deprive me of my entire salary as governor, I should go straight back to the Philippines nevertheless, for those people expect me back and I will not desert them."

"I believe I have the missionary spirit," he had told the senate committee.

Such is the true-missionary spirit. It is the spirit that has carried Christian doctrine and Christian civilization to the innermost parts of the earth, that has taught the brown man and the black man to feel that there are those of the whites who do not regard them merely as prey for the greed and ambition of the stronger race. The altruism of such men as Taft and Bryan is a revelation to the people of our mortal possessions which must go far toward convincing them that Americans really have their welfare at heart and are lending them, along the path of education and self-reliance toward the goal of a stable and well ordered government.

The Democratic revolt against Mr.

Bryan was remarkable not only for its moral strength and dignity, but for the high average of intelligence and patriotism among its members.

These are vital forces which must be utterly stilled before Mr. Bryan can hope for the return of those who repudiated his standard.

"To exterminate them he offers a variety of remedies. He has a large assortment of remedies, so that if you do not like one you may try another, and so on until you find one that pleases your fancy.

"But, analyzing all of them, you find that he makes three proposals which he thinks suitable and practicable in limiting the power of corporations. In the first place, he says, 'Let us prohibit the duplication of directors in competing corporations—that is, make it unlawful for a director in one concern to be a director in another.' This is a very pretty theory, but is it workable?

"You know quite well if a man owns the majority of stock in a number of corporations he would have such directors as he wanted, and whether there was any duplication or not the effect would be the same. 'Well, if you don't like that,' says Mr. Bryan, 'here is another proposal.'

"Let us go through the tariff schedules and put on the free list the things that are helping manufactured by the trusts. That will destroy them.' True enough, but would it not also destroy the weaker manufacturers in the same line who are fighting against the trusts and who, being small, have the least power to resist? 'Well, then,' says Mr. Bryan, 'here's another that's bound to win. Let's cut down the output of each monopoly to 30 per cent.'

"Another pretty but wholly fanciful theory. I say that an attempt to regulate manufacturers by percentages would entail such a complicated system of bureaus that government would be obviously bureaucratic. All these schemes are an attempt to bring about reform by magic.

"I recognize the oratorical powers and believe firmly in the sincerity of the Democratic candidate, but I believe just as firmly that an enforcement of his principles would end in disaster."

As a regular Mr. Taft probably holds the record. He resigned as assistant prosecutor of Cincinnati to become internal revenue collector, refused to become superior court judge, resigned to become collector general of the United States, resigned to become federal circuit court judge, resigned to head the Philippine commission, resigned to become secretary of war and finally resigned that to run for president.

Each of Mr. Taft's three brothers is a lawyer, although Charles P. finds more fun in running a newspaper than he does in law, and George has made his living teaching his life work, being the head of the Taft school in Watertown, Conn. Henry W. Taft is one of the leaders of the New York bar.

Tom Wilson has found the best possible performance he can make forward to life in New England. He should forward it to life in New England, without delay. It is William Jennings Bryan's personal property. His initials will be found carved in the southwest corner of the cheap money plank.

The basketball season in Newburyport will open Nov. 5, and the team is to be made up of Vaughan, Cummings, Allen, Doherty, Long and Corbett.

THE TRUE CHRISTIAN SPIRIT.

As Exemplified by William Howard Taft and Bishop Brent.

Another American has shown the same noble spirit that moved William H. Taft to request President Roosevelt to withhold his appointment as Justice of the United States supreme court that would have brought him back from his arduous work in the Philippines to the lighter labors and the more congenial scenes of his native land.

Missionary Bishop trout of the Episcopal church in the Philippines, offered the bishops of Washington, with its social advantages and agreeable surroundings and its opportunities for intercourse with many of the ablest men of this and other countries, preferred his life of self-sacrifice in the far-off oriental islands and declined to leave his work among the Filipinos for a mansion in the capital of the United States.

THE MAD DUCHESS.

Lady Catherine Hyde and Her Eccentricities of Dress.

Lady Catherine Hyde was the third daughter of Henry, second earl of Rochester and fourth earl of Claremont, and a great-granddaughter of Edward, the fifth and favorite son of Clarence.

One of the strongest of her eccentricities was to be unlike other people, and she succeeded admirably in the attempt. Bollingbrook, nicknamed by "La Signorina," Horace Walpole, more bluntly, "The Mad Duchess," This oddity was specially displayed in her dress. In 1717, after a good deal of intriguing, she had obtained permission to appear again at court, and in 1723 Horace Walpole tells Lord Herford that she presented herself there in a gown and petticoat of red flannel, making all allowance for ugly lingerie on such a subject and Walpole's tendency to exaggerate a story. It is beyond doubt that she deliberately courted the peculiar in her costume. She was fond of wearing an apron and appeared in one at court after this garment had been forbidden at the royal drawing rooms. Her entrance being opposed by one of the lords in waiting, she cut it off, threw it in a chair and walked on. Dame Nash on a similar occasion took the law into his own hands, for when she attempted to enter the ballroom at Bath wearing an apron he promptly stripped it off and threw it among the ladies' maids, observing that none but Abigail appeared in white aprons. It was her fancy as she grew older to disregard the changes of fashion and to adhere obstinately to the dress of her younger days. Her attire at times was so weird that Lord Clarendon wrote, "She has been called 'six' upon the read above twenty times."

THE MARINER'S COMPASS.

Influences That Draw It From Its Allegiance to the Pole.

Nothing in the navigational equipment of a ship has been the subject of more anxious research or received more lemons care than the mariner's compass.

The popular notion of the compass needle always pointing north and south is well, more inaccurate than even popular notions usually are.

Even under the most favorable conditions there are only certain places upon the surface of the earth where the compass needle does point north and south, and it is quite safe to say that such conditions are never found on board of any ship.

But we must go further and say that no more unfavorable position could be found for a compass than on board of a moving steamship, which is a complicated mass of steel, all tending to draw the compass needle from its allegiance to the magnetic pole of the earth, warring influences which must needs be compensated by all sorts of devices which hedge round the instrument by an invisible wall of conflicting currents of magnetism.

And if this were not enough there are now living dynamics to be reckoned with, producing electric currents for all sorts of purposes on board. In the midst of these mystic currents the poor little compass needle, upon which the mariner depends for his guide across the trackless deep, hangs suspended like one shrinking saint surrounded by legions of devils.—Windsor Magazine.

Martian Life Dying.

A sadder interest attaches to such existence that it is, cosmically speaking, soon to pass away. To our eventual descendants life on Mars will no longer be something to search and interpret. It will have lapsed beyond the hope of study or recall. This to us takes on an added glamour from the fact that it has not long to last, for the process that brought it to its present pass must go on to the bitter end until the last spark of Martian life goes out. The drying up of the planet is certain to proceed until its surface can support no life at all.

Slowly, but surely, this will snuff it out. When the last ember is thus extinguished the planet will roll a dead world through space. Its evolutionary career forever ended. Professor Low, in Century.

Dactyl's Bills.

Who, having obtained an honest bill for the medicine, will wish to have particular of the doctor's "professional services?" Imagine a bill made up with such variety as this: "To counting pulse, sixpence; to swaying tongue, threepence; to asking four questions (three irrelevant), fourpence; to telling patients to say 'Amen-to-the,' eight pence; to medicine, 1s. 6d.; to bottle twopenny; to label, 1 penny; total, 3s. 6d."—Yorkshire Observer.

Advantage of Credit.

"My big sister has a loan."

"She's mine, but I don't like her."

"Know what my sister did do if I didn't like her loan?"

"No. What'd she do?"

"She'd send him back and get him changed, 'cause we've got a change account at the store he comes from!"—Newark Evening Star.

Different Opinions.

"I see a man intends to let a rattle shake him and depend on prayer for a cure. I tell that fiddle."

"I call it cruelty to animals unless somebody's going to pray for the snake after it's bitten such a fool as that!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Mats.

"She has got to get a new mat."

"Good heavens! Who does she talk about?"—Sporting Life.

Home-Made Chair Bottoms.

Take strong, heavy wrapping paper, cut out just the form you desire, and with a firm paste stick six thicknesses of the paper together, making thick paper. Trim the edges smooth like the pattern you cut, and with and you have a neat, strong seat to the chair, with little or no expense.

CITY BRIEFS

A nice rain.
One week from today and the battle is on.
The Elks are rushing their new home.
Doesn't the ground smell good after the rain.
The names of Calla and Ray are now almost forgotten.
Osgood Lodge, I. O. O. F. Fair, Nov. 10, 11, 12.
The navy yard workmen are thoroughly disgusted.
Handbell has taken the place of road bowling at the Creek.
The local ministers have been discussing the dance craze.
Have your shoes repaired at John Mott's, 34 Congress street.
But a very few of the criminal cases will be tried by jury.

The present calm is certainly a welcome sight to the farmers.
"The Gingerbread Man" company is one of the best troupes on the road.

Portsmouth's live business men have no complaint to offer as business is good.

A fine entertainment, elaborate booths; and good music at the big I. O. O. F. Fair.

Democrats are requested to meet at the new courthouse at 7:30 o'clock on Thursday evening.

The democrats are to have a political rally on Thursday, when Mayor White of Dover will speak.

Extra cars run to York, Hampton and Exeter for "The Gingerbread Man" and "The Man of the Hour."

An entertainment and assembly will be given in Freeman's Hall at eight o'clock Tuesday evening under the auspices of one of the Catholic societies.

The cowardly and disgraceful attacks upon the rights of the employes of the navy yard still continue and all emanate from the same source.

Over eight people say that as long as Dover will not extend the city water works to the Point, they must have some fire protection and expect the city to give them a handout.

Fishesitch skin. Heals cuts or burns without a scar. Cures piles, eczema, sore rheum, any itching. Doan's Ointment. Your druggist sells it.

Frank Hardy, who died suddenly at his home in Amesbury on Monday morning, was a brother of Samuel Hardy of this city. The deceased was a well known traveling man.

R. J. Ellery is obliged to run his force of men at his tool machine shop night and day in order to fill orders. This industry promises to prove one of the most successful in the city.

The Catholic society entertainment and assembly at Freeman's hall Tuesday night will charge 25 cents for single admission and 50 cents per couple.

Fred C. Snadley, the granite and marble dealer No. 2 Water street, has recently erected a massive granite monument in the South cemetery in memory of the late George F. Evans, who was general manager of the Maine Central Railroad.

Mayor Wallace Hackett has been appointed by Governor Charles M. Floyd as one of the representatives from this state to the conference, which will be held by the New England Governors on the driving week.

The sailors of the Marietta are making great arrangements for their annual ball, which will be held at Freeman's Hall on Wednesday evening. The committee in charge intend to outfit everything that has been attempted by the sailors in the way of a ball, which is going some.

The new orders of the telephone company to have men night operators instead of girls, will not effect this exchange, which has always had men operators at night. There are other places in the state, however, where an attempt has been made to work girls with poor effect. The night service in this city is excellent.

HANGED HIMSELF IN POLICE STATION

Was Discovered in Time to Save His Life

Michael McDermott Tried Suicide with Strap After Arrest for Drunkenness

Michael McDermott, who was arrested on Monday for drunkenness, made an attempt to end his life while locked up at the police station during the evening.

It is customary for McDermott to make the threat of doing away with himself every time he is brought in, and on Monday he spoke his little piece as usual.

About 11 o'clock some men in the cells next to that of McDermott heard a peculiar noise coming from McDermott's cell and gave the alarm. Captain Marden went in and found that he had been trying to end his life by hanging with a strap attached to the bars of the cell. McDermott is old at the game and life is nothing to him when he gets locked up.

On one occasion before he instituted a scare by setting fire to his clothing and scorching fire at the top of his sleeve. When the police opened the door to the cell room they found the place full of smoke and McDermott running around stark naked.

For all young freakish McDermott is a king and, although he is always killing himself, he is still dear to him, and he bears not a scar after all his experience.

AT THE NAVY YARD

The crew of the U. S. S. Maine is rowing soldier every day by discharges among the crew.

Now looks that the U. S. S. Maine will take a much longer journey than it first planned, from the fact that the ship is ordered to take all the supplies she can get while here.

This leads many to believe that the ship may forget to come back to Old yard.

Dr. C. E. Johnston of the Portsmouth health board was a visitor at the yard today.

Thirty men were discharged from the U. S. S. Maine today.

Past assistant Surgeon Charles G. Smith at the naval hospital has been removed to the Washington hospital for treatment.

Eight privates and one corporal arrived from the U. S. S. Maine guard on Monday.

Once more the prisoners are doing the work of laborers at the yard and regardless of the fact that officials will say they are doing work that carries no appropriation, it is known to every workman that the work they are performing at the stone crusher was always done by laborers in the department of yards and docks. No other way will stand for prison labor and there is no reason why Portsmouth should be inflicted with it. It can be stopped as it was before and the sooner the better. Something is radically wrong in this matter.

The bids for the erection of the 100 ton shears at the yard were opened at the navy pay office in this city today and forwarded to the Bureau at Washington. Several local bidders are said to have offered figures.

A man named Chase, living at Kittery Point, had the small finger of his right hand cut off on Monday afternoon while at work at the loading plant.

WILL MARRY ON WEDNESDAY

THE YARN OF THE SECOND MATE

Note: The marine corps is an old and honorable branch of the military service. Its organization, uniform and equipment are similar to that of the army, while its duties are entirely different, being confined almost wholly to government vessels and naval stations. natured joke or prank. The expression "Tell that to the marines," is as much as to say, "You can't expect us sailors to swallow a yarn like that but no doubt the marines will." The following yarn is supposed to have been spun by the second mate of the "Nancy Lee" to a young marine who, with his messmate Silas Green, received it with the usual credulity of the "Sea Soldier."

This was the tale that was told to me, by a battered and tattered son of the sea.

To me and my messmate, Silas Green. When I was a gullible young marine,

It was Captain Porgie on the deck. To his mate in the officer's hatch. While the bos'n hold in the forward hold was whirling his larboard watch.

"O how does our good ship head to-night?" How heads our gallant craft?" "O she heads by the East, South, West by North.

And the bilgeole lies abeam."

"And what does the quadrant indicate?" "O the quadrant's down to the freezing point."

"And the sextant lost a hand."

"O if the sextant lost a hand. And the quadrant falls so low. Let our bodies and bones to Davy Jones."

This night is bound to go."

"O bos'n hold in the forward hold. What water do you find?" "Four foot and a half by the royal gall."

And rather more behind."

"O fly aloft to the garboard strake. And reef the spanker boom.

Bend a studding sail on to the mizzen-mast.

And give her weather room."

"O sailors, collar your marlin spikes.

And each belaying pin.

Come stir your stumps and spike the pump."

Or more will be coming in."

They stirred their stumps, they spiked the pumps.

Aloft and low they worked, but O, Aloft and now they worked, but O. The water gained apace.

They bored a hole above the keel.

To let the water out.

But strange to say to their dismay.

The water laid a spout.

Then up spoke the cook of our gallant ship.

And he was a bolder brave.

Hee several wives in various ports.

And my life I'd oughter save."

Then up spoke the captain of marines.

Who dearly loved his crew.

"Its awful to die, but worse to be dry.

And I never we pipes to grog."

o then it was the second mate.

That filled them all with awe.

The second mate as bad men hate.

And cruel skippers jaw.

He took the anchor on his back.

And leaped into the main.

Through foam and spray he dove his way.

And sank and rose again.

Through foam and spray a league away.

That anchor stout he bore.

That safe at last he made it fast.

And warped the ship ashore.

"It ain't much of a job to talk about.

But a ticklish thing to see.

And something to do if I say it, too.

For that second mate was me."

This was the tale that was told to me.

By that brave and truthful son of the sea.

And I envy the life of a second mate.

Though captains curse him and bad men hate.

For he ain't like some of the swabs I've seen.

As would go and lie to a poor marine.

WENTWORTH—FORD

Erasel G. Wentworth, a Sanford, Me., merchant, and Miss Jennie M. Ford of the same town, were married in this city today by Rev. George W. Farmer.

There will be a good musical entertainment in connection with the assembly at Freeman's Hall Tuesday evening.

HIS MONEY WAS STOLEN

There was a bit of entertainment the Polish residents at the Creek on Monday evening which ended in police court today.

It appears that William Kazlusk, employed at the Gale Shoe Company and living nearby, had $50.00 stolen from his clothing in his room and at once he cast his suspicion on one Felix Domink.

Kazlusk and several of his countrymen did a gun-shoe stunt and watched out for Felix. On Monday night they found him in a saloon flush with money and accused him of robbing Kazlusk. He denied it but they held him in a corner and telephoned for the police who were up and the rest of the men searched the house where they found $50.00 in the cellar. The police court of today tells the rest of the story.
